FIRE BLIGHT TO AFFECT THE CROPS

Apple Orchards, however, are not so seriously damaged as some persons suppose. Bees spread disease while bloom was on.

That the ravages of the fire blight in Adams County orchards has been over-estimated is the belief of the apple growers who are close to conditions generally and have experienced visitations of this trouble in other years. Men, new in the apple business, who are having their first experience with the blight, do not realize that this year's affliction is not very severe and are more worried over its appearance than the actual state of affairs warrants.

There is no question, however, according to well informed orchardists that the blight is going to affect the size of the crop this year to no small degree. The blight is a bacterial disease which lies dormant during the winter months. This spring it exuded a sweet sap just about the time the apple trees were in full bloom. The sap attracted the bees and they carried the disease about from one tree to another just when the blossoms were most susceptible and, for this reason, the crop will be much affected.

In years when the blight was really serious, some growers remember that the entire top of the orchard would bear a brownish appearance. Few orchards are now suffering this seriously, though in some of them the affected trees are quite numerous.

Reports from other apple growing sections are to the effect that the fire blight has made its inroads elsewhere, particularly in the orchard regions of Virginia and West Virginia. There are also reports of the cedar rust doing no little damage in these states. This trouble has been fought in Adams County for many years and general success has attended the efforts of the fruit men.

The regular time for the monthly meeting of the Fruit Growers Association is this coming Saturday. The meeting has been postponed to some future date, to be announced later, when it is hoped to have a special feature to attract the members.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Biglerville Temperance Organization Holds Monthly Session.

The Biglerville W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. Charles Rouzer on Tuesday evening. The meeting was opened by singing after which Mrs. Hoke Slaybaugh gave a Bible reading. Sentence prayers were followed by roll call which was responded to by fifteen members each of whom gave an appropriate sentiment. The appointment of a program committee and other routine business occupied the next period. Margaret Blocher sang a solo and Miss Blanche Deatrick gave a reading. Miss Lola Bowers played a piano solo and the meeting was adjourned to meet at the home of Mrs. Coulson the first Tuesday evening in August.

RECOVERING

Will soon be Able to Visit his Parents here.

James Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Martin, of Baltimore street, is recovering nicely in a Reading hospital from injuries he received two weeks ago when he suffered a torn ligament, while attending to his duties as a freight brakeman on the Reading Railroad. Mr. Martin's home is in Harrisburg. He expects to be able to come to Gettysburg next week for a short visit.

July 11—Marine Officers' School Opens for Six Weeks' Session.

MANY SEEK TO TEACH SCHOOL

Examination in Gettysburg Sees Large Number of Young Men and Women Undergoing Mental Tests. Some Making up Work.

The Gettysburg High School building this morning held no less than sixty young people who were devoting all of their brains and energies to taking and passing the tests imposed by County Superintendent Roth. Some of them were applicants for teachers' certificates while others were making up studies.

Of the number, twenty were applying for professional certificates either for the first time, or for the renewal of former similar certificates. There were some who registered a low average in one or more of the subjects given in the tests June 16 and June 25 and who wished to bring up their average, if possible.

Included in those taking the examinations were twenty five who sought the common school diploma. Some of them failed to pass in one or more subjects at the original tests, while others were being examined for the first time. It was a busy lot of pupils and they had a varied assortment of work to cover.

Special interest attaches to the examinations given the applicants for teachers' certificates, for the reason that from the list of those who pass will be selected many of those to teach in Adams County's schools next term. The certificates will be in the hands of the fortunate ones not later than Monday, July 12 and most of the elections will be held next week.

DEATH TAKES JOHN H. BECK

Former Traveling Salesman Dies Near Round Top. Had been ill for Many Months. Leaves his Wife and Two Children.

After an illness of long duration from cancer John H. Beck died at 8:45 this morning at his home in Cumberland township near Round Top. He was born September 12, 1849 and consequently was aged 65 years, 9 months, and 26 days.

Mr. Beck for a number of years lived in Hanover and was a traveling salesman for Bright and Company, a Reading merchandise firm. He had a wide acquaintanceship in the State as a result of his travels for this concern and was well known in many places. Several years ago he retired from the active duties of salesman and took up his residence at Round Top.

He leaves his wife who, before marriage was Miss Margaret Rosensteel. He also leaves a son and a daughter, George D. Beck, formerly of Gettysburg, but now residing in Mount Carmel; and Miss M. Iva Beck, who has been residing with her parents. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Anna Bierhower and Mrs. Jennie L. Culp, both of Harrisburg; and a brother, Winfield Beck, of Ephrata.

The funeral arrangements had not been announced at the time of going to press, but it is understood that the interment will be at Hanover.

FIXING BRIDGE

Piers at Harrisburg Railroad Structure Re-capped.

The work of re-capping the piers of the Philadelphia and Reading bridge at Harrisburg is under way with a force of about twenty-five men. The old stone tops which have been weakened by long use are being removed and concrete tops built. The amount of replacement varies from five to fifteen feet in depth, according to the condition of the piers.

This work is done without interfering with the movement of the trains and requires skillful engineering. False piers are constructed in parts and floated in on flat boats, where they are raised to place with a steam crane from the bridge. After the false work has been set firmly in place, the bridge is raised with jacks until it clears the old pier entirely, and with blocks and wedges, the strain is placed on the temporary supports.

Careful inspection is made of each abutment and the tops are torn away until a sufficiently solid foundation is found. The concrete is mixed by the men over each pier and placed in the forms by hand. So far one pier has been completed and two others are under way. Instead of taking each pier as it comes, every fifth or sixth one is repaired so as not to greatly weaken the bridge and hinder the passage of trains.

RESERVED SEATS AT CHAUTAUQUA

Provision Made for those who Cannot Get to Sessions on Time. Instructions and Arrangements for Annual Event.

Dr. Charles F. Sanders, president of the local association, this morning, issued the following concerning the coming annual Chautauqua.

Chautauqua begins on July 16. The ticket canvassers will see you on or after the twelfth (Monday). They are doing their part out of love for the cause. Help them along by lifting your tickets promptly. Remember that you are getting the biggest value for your money in the Chautauqua ticket ever offered. The program is exceptionally fine.

No season tickets will be sold after the opening of Chautauqua. Be sure to get your ticket in time. Single admissions make it much more expensive, more than double the cost.

The Junior Chautauqua will be a novel feature this year. See to it that the children are provided with tickets so they may have the pleasure and profit of this most delightful treat.

Special arrangement has been made to provide for the needs of the very busy people who have felt that they were at a disadvantage other years. They cannot come early and hence they were constantly crowded to the rear. Many of them expressed a willingness to pay a little extra for a good seat even if they came late. To meet this situation two hundred seats on one side of the tent are reserved for those who care to purchase them. What are not sold after the first session will be thrown open to the general audience. This is a perfectly fair proposition.

The reservations are ten cents for each session or a dollar for the week. Remember, only one side is reserved for the very busy or the aged who may care to be in the reserved block.

On the other side the seats are just as good and not reserved.

We believe in our town. Let us all help to make this Chautauqua the big thing of the season, the best yet. There are several thousand towns having Chautauquas this summer. Mr. Pearson himself manages two hundred of them. Let Gettysburg get in to the front rank in her enthusiasm for Chautauqua, the movement that The New York Independent recently characterized as "the most American institution in the world."

MANY SUFFER MISFORTUNES

Odd Accidents and Mishaps to Residents of the County Towns. Long Chapter of Injuries Sustained by Various Residents.

Needles, fish hooks, hay forks and firecrackers contribute to the causes of the accident chapter in Adams County this week.

William Miller, the 7 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Miller, of New Oxford, met with a painful mishap when, as he was passing over one of the grass plots in Centre Square, barefooted, he stepped upon a needle which penetrated the fleshy part of the heel of his right foot to the depth of one inch.

While fishing with hook and line in the Conewago creek one day recently, Frederick Bowers, the 10 year old son of Mrs. Ella Bowers, of near the Seven Hundred school-house, had the misfortune to have the hook imbed itself deeply in the index finger of his right hand. A local surgeon cut out the piece of steel and treated the wounded member, which is now healing rapidly.

Peter Hoofnagle, of McSherrystown was assisting Lewis Cramer to haul hay for C. D. Smith, and when they drove into the barn with a load, Cramer threw a fork from the wagon to the mow. The fork slipped from the mow, and in its descent one of the steel tines struck and passed entirely through the calf of Hoofnagle's right leg.

While riding his bicycle, Charles Straley, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Straley, of New Oxford, was struck from the rear by the Stanley steamer of C. T. Hersh and thrown to the ground between the front wheels of the automobile. Both vehicles were going away from the town; young Straley, it seems, was in the act of crossing from the well beaten left side to the right side of the road on hearing the approaching machine, while Mr. Hersh evidently thought the boy would remain on the left side. Young Straley received a few minor bruises and abrasions upon his limbs, fortunately escaping being struck by the wheel of the machine. The bicycle was badly bent and broken.

Thinking a firecracker, which his brother, Ivan, had lighted a little while previous, had gone out. Cyril Rickrode, little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Rickrode, of New Oxford, picked it up and proceeded to examine it. The firecracker had not gone out, and suddenly sizzling forth, its fire struck the boy upon the upper lip and outside and inside his nostrils, inflicting painful burns. Home remedies were applied to the injury, which gave the boy relief, and caused it to heal.

Elmer Buckley, of Littlestown, met with a very painful accident while assisting in unloading a car of heavy lumber which is to be used in the new school building. His feet slipped off a plank on which he was standing and he fell between the bumpers of the two cars, severely spraining the ankle of his left foot. The same day while unloading the same car, Theodore Elme had the index finger of the right hand completely smashed off at the first joint.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. T. Auker and three children, of New-Oxford, narrowly escaped serious, if not fatal, injuries, when Mr. Auker's Overland slid down a 10 foot embankment and overturned onto the occupants on reaching the empty bed of the canal running along the road between Liverpool and New Buffalo, in Perry county, seven miles from the former place. Mr. Auker was making a trip to Midlin, his former home, when the accident occurred. Mr. Auker was turning out for a Ford coming toward him when the ground of the roadbed—of a soft shale foundation—gave away at the edge on his left, despite the fact that he had nearly two feet to spare, and the machine began to slide gently down the hillside, sliding until it reached the canal bed when it overturned upon its top. The occupants crawled out without injury. The machine was not badly damaged.

LINERS MENACED BY HOLT'S PLOT

Suicide Planned to Sink Saxonia and Philadelphia.

VESSELS FOUR DAYS OUT

The Philadelphia is Safe, But Saxonia Falls to Reply to Radio Messages.

New York, July 8.—Wireless warnings flashed over the ocean to the liners Philadelphia and Saxonia that Frank Holt, who killed himself in the Mineola jail, had placed bombs aboard one of them to explode in midocean. The two vessels carry 1000 passengers.

The Philadelphia replied that a thorough search had not revealed any bombs on board. The Saxonia has not replied, due probably to her wireless power being too weak.

Holt wrote his wife that somewhere on the ocean the liner Saxonia or the Philadelphia—he wasn't sure which—would be destroyed on Wednesday. A dynamite bomb, containing thirty pounds of explosive which Holt is known to have received and which has not been accounted for, is believed by the police to be the means Holt had chosen to destroy the ship.

Nothing more dramatic in the last few crowded days of Holt's life has come to light than the warning of destruction that was uncovered after his death. His confession that he placed the bomb in the capitol at Washington last Friday, his attempted assassination of Morgan, the growing belief that he was Muenster, culminating in his positive identification and his sensational suicide by leaping twenty feet from the top of his cell to the floor, formed a series of events to which the threatened destruction of the Philadelphia or the Saxonia fitted as a startling climax. He was positively identified as Erich Muenster, who poisoned his wife at Harvard in 1906.

The powerful wireless stations of the navy department were enlisted in the efforts to prevent the threatened disaster at sea. In answer to the warning there was received a message from the captain of the Philadelphia, which said everything on board had been identified and that all was well.

The Saxonia has not replied. Her failure to do so was attributed to the weakness of her wireless plant, which could not, it was thought, span the distance from midocean to shore without relay.

Both the Saxonia and the Philadelphia left New York on July 3 for Liverpool.

The text of Holt's letter, telegraphed to the navy department, was as follows:

"A steamer leaving New York for Liverpool should sink. God willing, on 7th. It is the Philadelphia or the Saxonia (Saxonia), but I am not quite sure, as these left on the second or third."

On the margin of the letter was written:

"Teat this off until after this happens."

The former governor, whose name was withheld, communicated with Major Pullman, head of the Washington, D. C., police force, and Major Pullman at once transmitted the information to the United States navy department and police headquarters in New York city.

The substance of Holt's letter was sent by radio to the commanders of the two vessels, as well as the department's report that it had been unable to verify that explosives had been put aboard one ship or the other.

GERMANS ROUT FRENCH

Victory for Kaiser's Forces in Apremont Region Admitted in Paris.

Paris, July 8.—An important gain by the German troops in a new offensive in the forest of Apremont, near the Meuse river, is admitted in the official communication from the war office.

The statement says that the Kaiser's forces succeeded in penetrating the French lines on a front of over 700 yards.

The official report indicates that fighting is going on on almost the entire front in France, but at other points the German assaults have been repelled.

Another Zeppelin Wrecked.

Amsterdam, July 8.—Another German Zeppelin was wrecked on Sunday. Compelled by motor trouble to descend, the airship dropped upon a farm house near Assenede, completely collapsing. Allied aeroplanes which recently raided the German airship shed at Brussels also flew over Malines and attacked the arsenal there, but caused only slight damage.

Killed in a Runaway.

Huntingdon, Pa., July 8.—Samuel Lawrence Sankey, fifty years old, of this place, was thrown from a buggy and killed instantly in a runaway near here. His neck was broken.

Turks Have Lost 180,000.

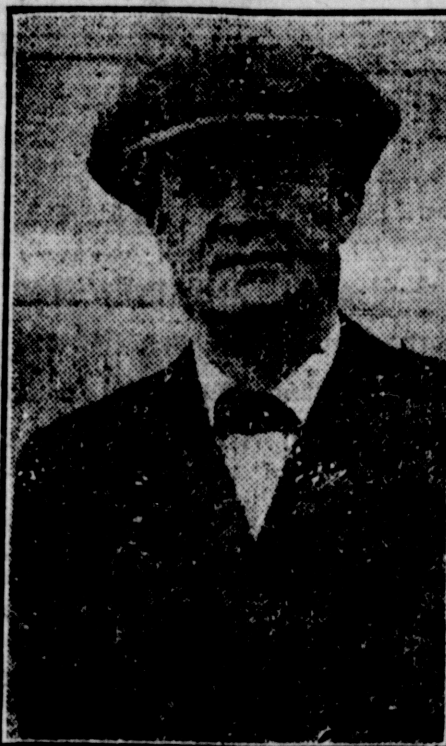

Athens, July 8.—Turkish losses in the Dardanelles fighting, both on land and sea, now total 180,000, according to Constantinople advices.

Daily Thought.

Too austere philosophy makes few wise men; too vigorous politics, few good subjects; and too hard a religion, few religious persons whose devotion is of long continuance. —St. Bernard.

D. A. THOMAS.

Welshman Who Comes to U. S. to Buy War Munitions.

© by American Press Association.

The steamer St. Louis of the American line, which has arrived from Liverpool, was escorted through the war zone by two British destroyers, which remained with the vessel two days and nights, according to passengers. The naval escort is believed to have been due to the presence on board of D. A. Thomas, the Welsh capitalist and coal operator, who comes to America to supervise and expedite the production of ammunition for the British government. Mr. Thomas was met at the pier by Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, and Willard D. Straight of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

BIGGEST TURK DRIVE ENDS IN SLAUGHTER

Ottoman Forces Mowed Down by Allies' Artillery.

Paris, July 8.—After a heavy bombardment of the allies' position at the Dardanelles, Turkish troops opened a general attack on Monday in the greatest attempt yet made to drive the allies from the Gallipoli peninsula, Paris reports.

The Ottoman troops were mowed down by the French artillery, machine guns and rifles, most of the attacking forces being slaughtered.

Details of the conflict are given in the following official communication: "At the Dardanelles the Turks launched, on July 5, a general attack of greater strength than had been made during the early attempts to drive us back to the sea."

"For four hours an extremely intense artillery fire was directed upon our lines and on the rear zone of the Franco-British troops. Following this, the enemy attempted several infantry attacks, but not one succeeded in reaching our trenches."

"Decimated by our fire and mowed down by rifles and machine guns, most of the assailants were left dead on the ground."

"During the entire action, the enemy's batteries on the Asiatic coast kept up an incessant fire. A Turkish cruiser crossing between Mados and Chanak took part in the action."

"Several of the enemy's aviators undertook a bombardment of our lines. In the evening fifteen allied aviators flew over the Turkish aerodrome at Chanak and threw many bombs, one large shell hitting the principal hangar."

PALMER TO STAY IN STATE

Former Congressman Will Not Accept Position on Court of Claims.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 8.—Former Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer, who was offered a place on the United States court of claims, which by President Wilson, will not accept the position.

Neither will he accept the position of counselor of the state department, made vacant by the elevation of Robert Lansing to the state portfolio, say close friends of Mr. Palmer in Wilkes-Barre.

Palmer's decision not to accept either of these places probably means that he will remain active in Pennsylvania politics. It is likely that he will continue as Democratic national committeeman and will devote his time to his private law practice and his business interests.

Girl Finds Father Suicide.

Sellsgrove, Pa., July 8.—Going in to the attic to note the progress of fruit she was crying since she became the little mother of the family a fortnight ago when her mother died in a hospital, fifteen-year-old Mabel Hackenberg, of Beaver Springs, found her father, Robert, lying on the floor, a suicide. Melancholy induced by his wife's death, it is believed, prompted him to fire a revolver bullet into his temple.

French Losses 1,400,000.

London, July 8.—According to an appeal issued by the French Relief society, 400,000 French soldiers had been killed up to June 1; 700,000 were wounded and 300,000 taken prisoners by the Germans.

CZAR'S ARMY HALTS TEUTONS

Drive on Warsaw Checked in Krasnick Region.

TAKE 2000 PRISONERS

London Believes the Russians Are Getting Into a Position to Fight Back—Berlin Announces Gains.

London, July 8.—The Russians have administered a temporary check, at least to the Austro-German advance north through Russian Poland toward Lublin and Warsaw.

In a flank attack on the heights to the northwest of Wilkoloz, east of Krasnik, they held up the advance, took 2000 prisoners and killed 2000. Since then they have held the lines between the Wiprz river and the western branch of the Bug river, as well as in other sectors.

The announcement that 2000 dead were found in front of the line indicates Russian casualties of from 10,000 to 12,000, according to the military estimates, and it shows that the Grand Duke Nicholas must have succeeded in a flank movement which cut off the prisoners from the main body of the forces.

While the action may not seem important so far as the numbers captured or killed, it is a promise that the Russians are getting into a position to fight back, and further, that the morale of the troops has not been destroyed. Before the troops of the Austrians and Germans reach Warsaw or Brest Litovsk they will have much hard fighting to do.

Renew Drive Against Warsaw.

Berlin, July 8.—German troops have renewed their drive against Warsaw from the west.

The official report from the general staff announces that the Germans have taken by storm Hill No. 95, to the south of Borzlow.

The report also announces the capture of more than 4600 Russians in the operations in Galicia and Poland.

The report follows: "On the west bank of the upper Vistula we made good progress."

"To the east of the Vistula there was no important change."

"During the pursuit of the Russians to the Zlota Lipa river from July 3 to July 5 the Germans captured 4850 men. The number of prisoners made south of Biale Bloto has been increased to seven officers and about 800 men."

"In Poland, south of the Vistula, the Germans stormed height 95, to the east of Dolowalka and south of Borzlow. The Russian losses were very considerable. Ten machine guns, one revolver gun and a quantity of rifles were taken."

"More to the northward, near the Vistula river, a Russian charge was repulsed."

MEXICO CITY UNDER SIEGE

Carranza Forces, Driven Back, Settle Down to Starving Out Process.

Puebla, Mex., July 8.—Carranza troops, who failed to capture Mexico City after fourteen days' fighting and then were driven back in disorder, are planning to place the Mexican capital under an indefinite siege, according to messengers who arrived from Mexico City.

They reported that it apparently was Carranza's purpose to starve the Zapata garrison into submission. Zapata's troops have been instructed to keep out the Carranza forces under General Pablo Gonzales at all costs. All those of the 400,000 population who are considered able to fight have been called upon to help.

Merchants who closed their shops because of the fear of looting by Carranza forces are said to have given their moral support to keeping Carranza out.

The people generally are described as opposed to Carranza, and in the opinion of many the return of his forces to the capital would result in riots.

The Zapata force is said to number 25,000 soldiers. Guns have been mounted in all passes leading to the valley.

Hunger riots continue in the capital, the supplies of food daily growing more scant.

French Transport Torpedoed.

Constantinople, July 8.—An official statement says: "In the Dardanelles a German submarine on July 4 sank a large French transport steamship off Seddul Bahr. We repulsed on the night of July 3 attempts by the enemy to bring forward strong divisions against our right wing."

Dies From Leap in Schuykill.

Reading, Pa., July 8.—Edwin F. Feather, sixty-one years old, a bookkeeper for thirty-eight years, jumped into the Schuykill river from a high bridge, with suicidal intent. He died five hours later. No cause is assigned.

AIR ATTACKS HELP TO ISOLATE GORZ

Hurl Bombs on Remaining Railway Line to City.

Rome, July 8.—The Italian offensive on the western edge of the Carso plateau, which lies inland from Montefiore, is officially reported to be progressing.

The object of this point is to cut the only remaining railway line to Gorz, thus completely isolating that stronghold. Already one railway line running through Gorz has been cut in two places, at Montefiore, to the south, and Piava, to the north.

The remaining line crosses the Carso plateau to Trieste, and once this has been interrupted the Austrian positions at Gorz will be very seriously endangered. Italian fliers have bombed stations on this line.

The Italian war office report says: "In the Tyrol and Trentino region the Austrians attempted on Monday to attack Forcella, the Col di Mezzo, to the west, and the three summits of Lavareda, but were repulsed, leaving in our hands prisoners, arms and munitions."

"Along the Carnic front the Austrians on Monday night resumed an attack on the entrenchment north of Val Grande. They were counter attacked and thrown back with heavy loss, abandoning arms and bucklers for the infantry."

"Important forces also attacked the Italian position on the Avostano peak, but the troops defending it, having allowed the enemy to approach a short distance, counter attacked and repulsed them."

SOLD RUM IN CITY HALL

Kansas Chief of Police Is Accused by Witnesses.

Wichita, Kan., July 8.—O. K. Stewart, chief of police, was arrested on a warrant charging three sales of whiskey.

The sales were alleged to have been made in the city hall from stocks of liquor which the police had confiscated in raids.

Mayor Bentley issued an order suspending the chief from office.

Henry J. Allen, editor of the Beacon, and members of its staff were questioned about articles charging that the laws were being violated openly. The witnesses testified that liquor had been purchased from the chief of police.

PEBBLE CAUSED BLOW-UP

Caught in Powder Grinding Machine on Middles Farm.

Washington, July 8.—No investigation is necessary, officials here said, to determine what caused Tuesday's gunpowder explosion on the naval academy dairy farm.

The explosion caused the death of John McLeary, white, and Albert Addison, a negro, and the serious injury of Albert Sapperton.

The blast unquestionably was due, it was stated, to the accidental shoveling of a pebble into a crusher which was grinding the condemned powder for use, on account of its nitrate value as a fertilizer.

SEVEN PLEAD GUILTY

113 Others Ask Change of Venue in Election Fraud Case.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 8.—Seven of the 132 men who are facing charges of election frauds in the registration primary and election of 1914, pleaded guilty when arraigned in the criminal court here.

One hundred and thirteen others, including Thomas Taggart, Democratic national committeeman; Joseph E. Bell, mayor of Indianapolis, and Samuel Perrott, chief of police, asked for a change of venue.

Japan and Russia in League.

Honolulu, July 8.—A new alliance between Japan and Russia is reported by Tokio dispatches to local Japanese papers to be imminent. Advice received says that the elder statesmen spent Monday in completing details of the reported alliance and that it is in nearly final form.

Monster Whale's Dainty Diet.

The blue or sulphur bottom whale is one of the largest animals that has ever existed on earth. Although its mouth is so large that a dozen men can stand upright in it, its throat is only nine inches in diameter. Another curious thing about this enormous creature is that its diet consists chiefly of tiny crustaceans—shrimps three-quarters of an inch long.

LOCALS UNABLE TO HIT SMITH

Ed they Drop One More Game to Hagerstown. Bases Full and None out in the Ninth but Two Men Strike out and Another Sacrifices.

One more game and the Patriots fastened the cellar door a little tighter. Hagerstown did it and the score was 3 to 1. Not one of the runs was earned. Howard pitched winning ball for Gettysburg but his teammates could not help out with any runs and the weakness in the batting list was again painfully apparent.

Hagerstown scored their first run in the third on a pass, a wide one that got by Jarosick, and a hit. Two more came in the seventh when Doeppe and Fuhrey got singles and were advanced by a sacrifice. Howard struck out the next batter, and with two out Walters hit a slow one to Bigler, who instead of playing for an easy out at the plate, threw wild to first and both runners scored.

Gettysburg's lone run came in the ninth when Mahaffie, Herril and Jarosick were all passed and the bases were full with no one out. Oylar fanned and Hall sent a sacrifice fly to center, scoring Mahaffie. Greenwell, batting for Howard, bit on three and the game was over whereupon one fan was heard to remark, "A little more of this and the interment will be private."

Smith who pitched for Hagerstown was most effective with men on base. In the first, with two out, Basehoar got a hit and stole second. Mahaffie struck out. In the second, with one on base, Oylar and Dove both fanned. In the third Basehoar was an easy third out with Kane on second. In the fifth, with Oylar on second, Howard struck out and Bigler rolled an easy one. In the seventh with Hall on second Howard fanned.

Gettysburg's best chance came in the sixth. Kane drew a pass and Basehoar laid down a bunt. He would have been safe at first but loafed and the play went for a sacrifice. Kane was caught at third on Mahaffie's grounder. Mahaffie stole second, but Herril failed to deliver.

The work of Kane and Mahaffie in the field for Gettysburg, and Fuhrey, of Hagerstown at short, was worthy of special mention.

Dove was released Wednesday evening. Newton and Sheekard, two former Tri-State men, were due to appear in the local line-up to-day.

To Appreciate Colors.

Only a few of the great painters have been great "colorists." for the regrettable reason that they could not divine see color, and to such painters the master colorist has been called crude and glib. The like thing for everyone is to cultivate the eye to a close and ever observation of all hues and shades in nature, for in that way only one can have the pleasure of the highest appreciation of nature, splendid as the wondrous revelations of the spectrum is in its divination of the composition of rays of light.

Monarch's Rebuke.

Charles the Second, for whom the Earl of Rochester made this epitaph, "Never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one," could convey a reproach with wit and gentleness. When Penn stood before him, with his hat on, the king took off his own. "Friend Charles," said the Quaker, "why dost thou not put on thy hat?" "Tis the custom of this place," returned the king, "that never more than one person should be covered at a time."

Almost the Same.

"Did you ever hear of a real goose laying a golden egg?" asked the young seeker after knowledge. "No," said his experienced papa, "but a young duck—I forget his name—once laid a ten-dollar bill with me and the money was counterfeit."

DESCRIBES FIRST BAYONET CHARGE

Former Broker, in Paris Hospital, Tells Thrilling Story.

ONE HOUR SEEMED LIFETIME

Has Momentary Repugnance When He Realizes He is About to Take Human Life; Then "Sees Red" and Bayonets Foes in Front—Feels Pain in Shoulder, Wakes Up in Hospital.

Lying in a hospital in Paris a young British soldier, who had been a London broker a few months ago, told the story of his first bayonet charge. It will be his last, too, for he will never be well enough again to be sent back to the front.

"We had gone into the trenches round Ypres only a few days before," he said, "and my first experience of the realities of war was to be the patiently suffering an awful inactivity while the artillery on both sides belched destruction on the men facing each other in the trenches.

"As dawn broke I felt an uncontrollable desire to climb out of the trench into the open, but I knew it was court-martial death, as I saw the next moment. The man nearest me raised his head above the parapet, and in an instant was bagged by a sniper. He rolled over with a stifled murmur, and lay quite still with his face buried in the soft red earth. I turned him over and spoke to him, but he was dead, with a hole in his forehead.

"The day passed fairly quietly until dusk, when we received the order that in an hour's time we were to storm one of the enemy's advanced positions.

Next Hour Seemed Lifetime.
"The next hour seemed a lifetime. The noise of the bombardment swelled louder and louder, but I hardly noticed it. The men around me showed their emotions in their faces. Some were excited and showed an almost exaggerated enthusiasm for the work in hand. The majority were strangely silent. I can honestly say I felt no actual fear, but I could not help remembering that in a short time our numbers would probably be reduced by half, and I was prepared for the worst.

"In five minutes the order would be given, and the thought of what was coming made my blood boil. I, too, became impatient to get out into that stretch of open ground which separated us from our goal. It was dark now, and the enemy's searchlight began to sweep our positions. Two more minutes and we should leap from our trenches.

"The bombardment reached its height, and with a wild, vicious, final roar, which seemed to open the heavens, it ceased. The moment had arrived. The order was given, and, scrambling over the parapet, we emerged into the shell swept zone. The enemy's machine guns began to spit fire among our ranks, but no one wavered. If we had felt any fear it had now left us. Men fell on all hands, but with a yell we rushed forward with bared steel toward the raised ground.

Face to Face With Foe.
"Our artillery had done its work well, for we found the wire defenses almost completely blown away. We reached the enemy's front trenches, and I raised my bayonet as a big Bavarian made fire at me.

"Then something within me made me hesitate, and a comrade laid the man out just in time. In the thick of the fight it had just dawned on me that I was about to take a human life for the first time, and I had felt a momentary repugnance.

"The next instant, however, one of our men next to me fell in a heap, and a bullet whizzed my face. Then I knew what it was to see red. With a yell I bayoneted the German who had shot the man, and had soon accounted for three more. The place was like a shambles. The German front line trenches were filled with a heap of torn and bloody corpses, and we were now attacking the rear trenches.

"Then suddenly I felt a pain in my shoulder, but I rushed on. I tried to raise my rifle, but found I could not, and the next moment I was hit simultaneously in the arm and the jaw. The pain was terrible, but, as I lay on the ground, I tried to shout for joy. I was infected with the fever of our success, for I knew that the position was won. Then I lost consciousness and I woke up in the field hospital."

GERMANY SAVES HER FOOD SUPPLY

Fashionable Diners Out Must Have Bread Tickets.

CARDS PREVENT BIG WASTE

In the Fashionable Restaurant and Dairy Lunch Rooms in Berlin One Can Find as Great a Variety of Foods as in Any American City—White Bread Only Food Hard to Find.

Germany is not starving. Food is plentiful. Shop windows are filled with meat, fruit, fish, cake, biscuits, bread and other varieties of food. Prices vary little from those in New York and London. The only food one has difficulty in finding is white bread, but everyone here is so accustomed to the "KK" or war potato bread that white bread is a forgotten luxury, says Carl W. Ackerman writing from Berlin.

In the fashionable restaurant and dairy lunches one can find as great a variety of foods as in any American city. At the first class hotels meals are as reasonable as they are in the leading American hotels.

Everybody, however, eats by bread card and no one wastes food. In the restaurants and hotels diners order only what they can eat. That is the way the civil population of Germany has adapted itself to the war.

My bread card was issued the first day of my arrival. It entitles me to 250 grams of bread for three meals. That amount is equal to ten good slices of a five-cent loaf of bread in America, and I have found that it is more than I care for any day. The daily bread cards are about four inches square. Around the borders are little square perforations which can be broken off and exchanged for twenty-five grams of bread each. In the center are instructions saying that the card is not transferable, that it is good for only a certain day and that it is my "daily statement of bread allowance."

Permanent residents of Berlin receive their bread cards every week from the municipal authorities. The weekly cards are about nine inches square. They must be carried to the bakeries every time one purchases bread or they must be taken to the restaurants if one "dines out."

Housewives Enthusiastic.
German housewives are enthusiastic over bread cards, and the American women who maintain "pensions" here say they wish Germany had always had such cards. They declare the cards prevent an enormous waste of bread and they prevent the maids from taking bread away without their mistress' consent.

While food is plentiful the German government is doing everything possible to conserve the supplies and the people firmly believe that the United States should continue to send food into this country.

Every American who comes to Berlin, according to Ambassador Gerard, wants to see the kaiser. A few weeks ago a New Jersey minister appeared at the embassy with letters of introduction to the ambassador.

"Well, what can I do for you?" asked Gerard.

"Well," replied the divine hesitatingly, "nothing at present. I just wanted to come in and see you."

"You're the first American in two years who hasn't asked to meet the kaiser," said Gerard.

Germany's "KK" bread looks like brown bread and tastes like white bread.

That's the way the German scientists have put the bread problem on a scientific basis. "KK" bread gets its name from "Kriegs-kartoffel brot," which, translated, means "war potato bread." It is bread made of a mixture of wheat and potato flour, and it is considered just as nutritious as whole wheat bread.

Early in the war the United States department of agriculture imported some potato flour from Germany to experiment with it. It is understood here that the American scientists have found the "KK" bread made of 30 per cent potato flour and 70 per cent wheat flour more healthful than ordinary white bread.

SIX KILLED BY MANIAC.

Bodies Found Under House of Man Who Died in Asylum.

Six skeletons, apparently revealing murders committed by Eugene Butler while insane, were uncovered under his home, southeast of Niagara, N. D. The victim had been hit on the head, their skulls being crushed in. All but one of the victims were adults, the other being a boy fifteen to eighteen years of age.

The discovery reveals a new chapter in the life of Butler, who was a recluse, became insane in 1906 and was an inmate of the Asylum for the Insane at Jamestown until his death in 1913.

That his victims were farm laborers who, he believed, were plotting to get his money is the theory advanced by officials.

The bodies were buried under the house, side by side, and Butler had concealed an opening through the floor through which he had dropped the victims. The murders were probably committed over a period of several years, probably four or five years before he was committed as insane.

Twin Tires?—No
One's a Goodyear as It Might Be
The Other Costs Us $1,635,000 More
This is to prove that you can't judge tires by looks.
Here are two Goodyear tires, seemingly identical. But one is built like many of its rivals. Goodyear extras are omitted. The other has those hidden values. And those unseen extras, on this year's output, will cost us $1,635,000. This year's betterments alone add to our cost $500,000 yearly. Yet our 1915 price reduction saves our users about five million dollars.
No Price Excuse
This is not a price excuse. Goodyear prices have been fairly racing down. Our late big reduction made the third in two years, totaling 45 per cent. No equal tire can compete. with the Goodyear, because of our matchless output. None does. Goodyear excels all other tires in at least five important ways.
You Deserve It
You deserve the Goodyear quality when you buy a tire. You deserve Fortified Tires, with the No-Rim-Cut feature, the "On-Air" cure, our extra-strong fabric, our number of plies. You deserve anti-skids on our All-Weather tread, tough, double-thick and resistless. These things have brought Goodyear the largest sale in the world. They are saving our users millions of dollars yearly. They are at your command. Any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires. (2491)

LINERS MENACED BY HOLT'S PLOT

Suicide Planned to Sink Saxonia and Philadelphia.

VESSELS FOUR DAYS OUT

The Philadelphia is Safe, But Saxonia Fails to Reply to Radio Messages.

New York, July 8.—Wireless warnings flashed over the ocean to the liners Philadelphia and Saxonia that Frank Holt, who killed himself in the Mineola jail, had placed bombs aboard one of them to explode in midocean. The two vessels carry 1000 passengers.

The Philadelphia replied that a thorough search had not revealed any bombs on board. The Saxonia has not replied, due probably to her wireless power being too weak.

Holt wrote his wife that somewhere on the ocean the liner Saxonia or the Philadelphia—he wasn't sure which—would be destroyed on Wednesday. A dynamite bomb, containing thirty pounds of explosive which Holt is known to have received and which has not been accounted for, is believed by the police to be the means Holt had chosen to destroy the ship.

Nothing more dramatic in the last few crowded days of Holt's life has come to light than the warning of destruction that was uncovered after his death. His confession that he placed the bomb in the capitol at Washington last Friday, his attempted assassination of Morgan, the growing belief that he was Muenster, culminating in his positive identification and his sensational suicide by leaping twenty feet from the top of his cell to the floor, formed a series of events to which the threatened destruction of the Philadelphia or the Saxonia fitted as a startling climax. He was positively identified as Erich Muenster, who poisoned his wife at Harvard in 1906.

The powerful wireless stations of the navy department were enlisted in the efforts to prevent the threatened disaster at sea. In answer to the warning there was received a message from the captain of the Philadelphia, which said everything on board had been identified and that all was well.

The Saxonia has not replied. Her failure to do so was attributed to the weakness of her wireless plant, which could not, it was thought, span the distance from midocean to shore without relay.

Both the Saxonia and the Philadelphia left New York on July 3 for Liverpool.

The text of Holt's letter, telegraphed to the navy department, was as follows:

"A steamer leaving New York for Liverpool should sink, God willing, on 7th. It is the Philadelphia or the Saxonia (Saxonia), but I am not quite sure, as these left on the second or third."

On the margin of the letter was written:

"Dear this off until after this happens."

The former governor, whose name was withheld, communicated with Major Pullman, head of the Washington, D. C., police force, and Major Pullman at once transmitted the information to the United States navy department and police headquarters in New York city.

The substance of Holt's letter was sent by radio to the commanders of the two vessels, as well as the department's report that it had been unable to verify that explosives had been put aboard one ship or the other.

GERMANS ROUT FRENCH

Victory For Kaiser's Forces in Apremont Region Admitted in Paris.

Paris, July 8.—An important gain by the German troops in a new offensive in the forest of Apremont, near the Meuse river, is admitted in the official communication from the war office.

The statement says that the Kaiser's forces succeeded in penetrating the French lines on a front of over 700 yards.

The official report indicates that fighting is going on on almost the entire front in France, but at other points the German assaults have been repelled.

Another Zeppelin Wrecked.

Amsterdam, July 8.—Another German Zeppelin was wrecked on Sunday. Compelled by motor trouble to descend, the airship dropped upon a farm house near Assenede, completely collapsing. Allied aeroplanes which recently raided the German airship shed at Brussels also flew over Malmes and attacked the arsenal there, but caused only slight damage.

Killed in a Runaway.

Huntendon, Pa., July 8.—Samuel Lawrence Sankey, fifty years old, of this place, was thrown from a buggy and killed instantly in a runaway near here. His neck was broken.

Turks Have Lost 180,000.

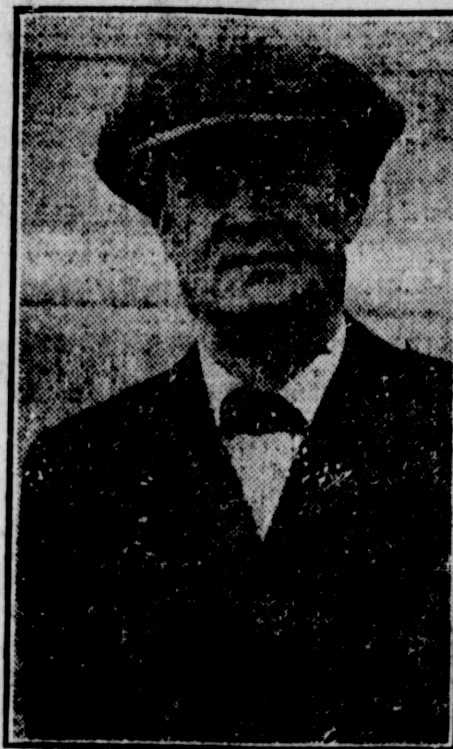

Athens, July 8.—Turkish losses in the Dardanelles fighting, both on land and sea, now total 180,000, according to Constantinople advices.

D. A. THOMAS.

Welshman Who Comes to U. S. to Buy War Munitions.

By American Press Association.

The steamship St. Louis of the American line, which has arrived from Liverpool, was escorted through the war zone by two British destroyers, which remained with the vessel two days and nights, according to passengers. The naval escort is believed to have been due to the presence on board of D. A. Thomas, the Welsh capitalist and coal operator, who comes to America to supervise and expedite the production of ammunition for the British government. Mr. Thomas was met at the pier by Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, and Willard D. Straight of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

BIGGEST TURK DRIVE ENDS IN SLAUGHTER

Ottoman Forces Mowed Down by Allies' Artillery.

Paris, July 8.—After a heavy bombardment of the allies' position at the Dardanelles, Turkish troops opened a general attack on Monday in the greatest attempt yet made to drive the allies from the Gallipoli peninsula, Paris reports.

The Ottoman troops were mowed down by the French artillery, machine guns and rifles, most of the attacking forces being slaughtered.

Details of the conflict are given in the following official communication: "At the Dardanelles the Turks launched, on July 5, a general attack of greater strength than had been made during the early attempts to drive us back to the sea."

"For four hours an extremely intense artillery fire was directed upon our lines and on the rear zone of the Franco-British troops. Following this, the enemy attempted several infantry attacks, but not one succeeded in reaching our trenches."

"Decimated by our fire and mowed down by rifles and machine guns, most of the assailants were left dead on the ground."

"During the entire action, the enemy's batteries on the Asiatic coast kept up an incessant fire. A Turkish cruiser crossing between Mados and Chanak took part in the action."

"Several of the enemy's aviators undertook a bombardment of our lines. In the evening fifteen allied aviators flew over the Turkish aerodrome at Chanak and threw many bombs, one large shell hitting the principal hangar."

PALMER TO STAY IN STATE

Former Congressman Will Not Accept Position on Court of Claims.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 8.—Former Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer, who was offered a place on the United States court of claims, declined by President Wilson, will not accept the position.

Neither will he accept the position of counselor of the state department, made vacant by the elevation of Robert Lansing to the state portfolio, say close friends of Mr. Palmer in Wilkes-Barre.

Palmer's decision not to accept either of these places probably means that he will remain active in Pennsylvania politics. It is likely that he will continue as Democratic national committeeman and will devote his time to his private law practice and his business interests.

Girl Finds Father Suicide.

Sellsgrrove, Pa., July 8.—Going in to the attic to note the progress of fruit she was drying since she became the little mother of the family a fortnight ago when her mother died in a hospital, fifteen-year-old Mabel Hackenberg, of Beaver Springs, found her father, Robert, lying on the floor, a suicide. Melancholy induced by his wife's death, it is believed, prompted him to fire a revolver bullet into his temple.

French Losses 1,400,000.

London, July 8.—According to an appeal issued by the French Relief society, 400,000 French soldiers had been killed up to June 1; 700,000 were wounded and 200,000 taken prisoners by the Germans.

CZAR'S ARMY HALTS TEUTONS

Drive on Warsaw Checked in Krasnick Region.

TAKE 2000 PRISONERS

London Believes the Russians Are Getting Into a Position to Fight Back—Berlin Announces Gains.

London, July 8.—The Russians have administered a temporary check, at least to the Austro-German advance north through Russian Poland toward Lublin and Warsaw.

In a flank attack on the heights to the northwest of Wilkopol, east of Krasnick, they held up the advance, took 2000 prisoners and killed 2000.

Since then they have held the lines between the Wiprz river and the western branch of the Bug river, as well as in other sectors.

The announcement that 2000 dead were found in front of the line indicates Teuton casualties of from 10,000 to 12,000, according to the military estimates, and it shows that the Grand Duke Nicholas must have succeeded in a flank movement which cut off the prisoners from the main body of the forces.

While the action may not seem important so far as the numbers captured or killed, it is a promise that the Russians are getting into a position to fight back, and further, that the morale of the troops has not been destroyed. Before the troops of the Austrians and Germans reach Warsaw or Brest Litovsk they will have much hard fighting to do.

Renew Drive Against Warsaw.

Berlin, July 8.—German troops have renewed their drive against Warsaw from the west.

The official report from the general staff announces that the Germans have taken by storm Hill No. 95, to the south of Borzlow.

The report also announces the capture of more than 4600 Russians in the operations in Galicia and Poland.

The report follows:

"On the west bank of the upper Vistula we made good progress."

"To the east of the Vistula there was no important change."

"During the pursuit of the Russians to the Zlota Lipa river from July 3 to July 5 the Germans captured 4850 men. The number of prisoners made south of Biale Bloto has been increased to seven officers and about 800 men."

"In Poland, south of the Vistula, the Germans stormed height 95, to the east of Dolowatka and south of Borzlow. The Russian losses were very considerable. Ten machine guns, one revolver gun and a quantity of rifles were taken."

"More to the northward, near the Vistula river, a Russian charge was repulsed."

MEXICO CITY UNDER SIEGE

Carranza Forces, Driven Back, Settle Down to Starving Out Process.

Puebla, Mex., July 8.—Carranza troops, who failed to capture Mexico City after fourteen days' fighting and then were driven back in disorder, are planning to place the Mexican capital under an indefinite siege, according to messengers who arrived from Mexico City.

They reported that it apparently was Carranza's purpose to starve the Zapata garrison into submission. Zapata's troops have been instructed to keep out the Carranza forces under General Pablo Gonzales at all costs. All those of the 400,000 population who are considered able to fight have been called upon to help.

Merchants who closed their shops because of the fear of looting by Carranza forces are said to have given their moral support to keeping Carranza out.

The people generally are described as opposed to Carranza, and in the opinion of many the return of his forces to the capital would result in riots.

The Zapata force is said to number 25,000 soldiers. Guns have been mounted in all passes leading to the valley.

Hunger riots continue in the capital, the supplies of food daily growing more scant.

French Transport Torpedoed.

Constantinople, July 8.—An official statement says: "In the Dardanelles a German submarine on July 4 sank a large French transport steamship off Seddul Bahr. We repulsed on the night of July 3 attempts by the enemy to bring forward strong divisions against our right wing."

Dies From Leap In Schuykill.

Reading, Pa., July 8.—Edwin F. Feather, sixty-one years old, a bookkeeper for thirty-eight years, jumped into the Schuykill river from a high bridge, with suicidal intent. He died five hours later. No cause is assigned.

AIR ATTACKS HELP TO ISOLATE GORZ

Hurl Bombs on Remaining Railway Line to City.

Rome, July 8.—The Italian offensive on the western edge of the Carso plateau, which lies inland from Montfalcone, is officially reported to be progressing.

The object of this point is to cut the only remaining railway line to Gorz, thus completely isolating that stronghold. Already one railway line running through Gorz has been cut in two places, at Montfalcone, to the south, and Piava, to the north.

The remaining line crosses the Carso plateau to Trieste, and once this has been interrupted the Austrian positions at Gorz will be very seriously endangered. Italian fliers have bombarded stations on this line.

The Italian war office report says:

"In the Tyrol and Trentino region the Austrians attempted on Monday to attack Forcella, the Col di Mezzo, to the west, and the three summits of Lavareda, but were repulsed, leaving in our hands prisoners, arms and munitions."

"Along the Carnic front the Austrians on Monday night resumed an attack on the entrenchment north of Val Grande. They were counter attacked and thrown back with heavy loss, abandoning arms and bucklers for the infantry."

"Important forces also attacked the Italian position on the Avostano peak, but the troops defending it, having allowed the enemy to approach a short distance, counter attacked and repulsed them."

SOLD RUM IN CITY HALL

Kansas Chief of Police Is Accused by Witnesses.

Wichita, Kan., July 8.—O. K. Stewart, chief of police, was arrested on a warrant charging three sales of whiskey.

The sales were alleged to have been made in the city hall from stocks of liquor which the police had confiscated in raids.

Mayor Bentley issued an order suspending the chief from office.

Henry J. Allen, editor of the Beacon, and members of its staff were questioned about articles charging that the laws were being violated openly. The witnesses testified that liquor had been purchased from the chief of police.

PEBBLE CAUSED BLOW-UP

Caught in Powder Grinding Machine on Middles Farm.

Washington, July 8.—No investigation is necessary, officials here said, to determine what caused Tuesday's gunpowder explosion on the naval academy dairy farm.

The explosion caused the death of John McLeary, white, and Albert Addison, a negro, and the serious injury of Albert Sappoton.

The blast unquestionably was due, it was stated, to the accidental shoveling of a pebble into a crusher which was grinding the condemned powder for use, on account of its nitrate value as a fertilizer.

LOCALS UNABLE TO HIT SMITH

ed they Drop One More Game to Hagerstown. Bases Full and None out in the Ninth but Two Men Strike out and Another Sacrifices.

One more game and the Patriots fastened the cellar door a little tighter. Hagerstown did it and the score was 3 to 1. Not one of the runs was earned. Howard pitched winning ball for Gettysburg but his teammates could not help out with any runs and the weakness in the batting list was again painfully apparent.

Hagerstown scored their first run in the third on a pass, a wide one that got by Jarosick, and a hit. Two more came in the seventh when Doepppe and Fuhrey got singles and were advanced by a sacrifice. Howard struck out the next batter, and with two out Walters hit a slow one to Bigler, who instead of playing for an easy out at the plate, threw wild to first and both runners scored.

Gettysburg's lone run came in the ninth when Mahaffie, Herril and Jarosick were all passed and the bases were full with no one out. Oylar fanned and Hall sent a sacrifice fly to center, scoring Mahaffie. Greenwell, batting for Howard, bit on three and the game was over whereupon one fan was heard to remark, "A little more of this and the interment will be private."

Smith who pitched for Hagerstown was most effective with men on base. In the first, with two out, Basehoar got a hit and stole second. Mahaffie struck out. In the second, with one on base, Oylar and Dove both fanned. In the third Basehoar was an easy third out with Kane on second. In the fifth, with Oylar on second, Howard struck out and Bigler rolled an easy one. In the seventh with Hall on second Howard fanned.

Gettysburg's best chance came in the sixth. Kane drew a pass and Basehoar laid down a bunt. He would have been safe at first but loafed and the play went for a sacrifice. Kane was caught at third on Mahaffie's grounder. Mahaffie stole second, but Herril failed to deliver.

The work of Kane and Mahaffie in the field for Gettysburg, and Fuhrey, of Hagerstown at short, was worthy of special mention.

Dove was released Wednesday evening. Newton and Sheekard, two former Tri-State men, were due to appear in the local line-up to-day.

To Appreciate Colors.

Only a few of the great painters have been great "colorists." For the regrettable reason that they could not divinely see color, and to such painters the master colorist has been called crude and earthy. The fine thing for everyone is to cultivate the eye to a close and ever observation of all hues and shades in nature, for in that way only one can have the pleasure of the highest appreciation of nature, splendid as the wondrous revelations of the spectrum is in its divination of the composition of rays of light.

Monarch's Rebuke.

Charles the Second, for whom the earl of Rochester made this epitaph, "Never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one," could convey a reproach with wit and gentleness. When Penn stood before him, with his hat on the king took off his own. "Friend Charles," said the Quaker, "why dost thou not put on thy hat?" "Tis the custom of this place," returned the king, "that never more than one person should be covered at a time."

Almost the Same.

"Did you ever hear of a real goose laying a golden egg?" asked the young seeker after knowledge. "No," said his experienced papa, "but a young duck—I forget his name—once laid a ten-dollar bet with me and the money was counterfeit."

DESCRIBES FIRST BAYONET CHARGE

Former Broker, in Paris Hospital, Tells Thrilling Story.

ONE HOUR SEEMED LIFETIME

Has Momentary Repugnance When He Realizes He is About to Take Human Life; Then "Sees Red" and Bayonets Foes in Front—Feels Pain in Shoulder, Wakes Up in Hospital.

Lying in a hospital in Paris a young British soldier, who had been a London broker a few months ago, told the story of his first bayonet charge. It will be his last, too, for he will never be well enough again to be sent back to the front.

"We had gone into the trenches round Ypres only a few days before," he said, "and my first experience of the realities of war was to be patiently suffering an awful inactivity while the artillery on both sides belched destruction on the men facing each other in the trenches.

"As dawn broke I felt an uncontrollable desire to climb out of the trench into the open, but I knew it was court-martial death, as I saw the next moment. The man nearest me raised his head above the parapet, and in an instant was bagged by a sniper. He rolled over with a stifled murmur, and lay quite still with his face buried in the soft red earth. I turned him over and spoke to him, but he was dead, with a hole in his forehead.

"The day passed fairly quietly until dusk, when we received the order that in an hour's time we were to storm one of the enemy's advanced positions.

Next Hour Seemed Lifetime.

"The next hour seemed a lifetime. The noise of the bombardment swelled louder and louder, but I hardly noticed it. The men around me showed their emotions in their faces. Some were excited and showed an almost exaggerated enthusiasm for the work in hand. The majority were strangely silent. I can honestly say I felt no actual fear, but I could not help remembering that in a short time our numbers would probably be reduced by half, and I was prepared for the worst.

"In five minutes the order would be given, and the thought of what was coming made my blood boil. I, too, became impatient to get out into that stretch of open ground which separated us from our goal. It was dark now, and the enemy's searchlight began to sweep our positions. Two more minutes and we should leap from our trenches.

"The bombardment reached its height, and with a wild, vicious, final roar, which seemed to open the heavens, it ceased. The moment had arrived. The order was given, and, scrambling over the parapet, we emerged into the shell swept zone. The enemy's machine guns began to spit fire among our ranks, but no one wavered. If we had felt any fear it had now left us. Men fell on all hands, but with a yell we rushed forward with bared steel toward the raised ground.

Face to Face With Foe.

"Our artillery had done its work well, for we found the wire defenses almost completely blown away. We reached the enemy's front trenches, and I raised my bayonet as a big Bavarian made to fire at me.

"Then something within me made me hesitate, and a comrade laid the man out just in time. In the thick of the fight it had just dawned on me that I was about to take a human life for the first time, and I had felt a momentary repugnance.

"The next instant, however, one of our men next to me fell in a heap, and a bullet whizzed my face. Then I knew what it was to see red. With a yell I bayoneted the German who had shot the man, and had soon accounted for three more. The place was like a shambles. The German front line trenches were filled with a heap of torn and bloody corpses, and we were now attacking the rear trenches.

"Then suddenly I felt a pain in my shoulder, but I rushed on. I tried to raise my rifle, but found I could not, and the next moment I was hit simultaneously in the arm and the jaw. The pain was terrible, but, as I lay on the ground, I tried to shout for joy. I was infected with the fever of our success, for I knew that the position was won. Then I lost consciousness and I woke up in the field hospital."

OLDEST ALUMNUS DIES.

Dr. J. F. Mesick, 102, Received Rutgers Diploma in 1834.

Dr. John F. Mesick, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Gross, in York, Pa., was the oldest college graduate in this country. He died at the age of 102 years and was valedictorian of his class in 1834 at Rutgers college.

Dr. Mesick was born in Albany, N. Y. Following his graduation he entered the Theological seminary in New Brunswick and was graduated in 1837. At the time of his death he had been in the ministry seventy-eight years.

GERMANY SAVES HER FOOD SUPPLY

Fashionable Diners Out Must Have Bread Tickets.

CARDS PREVENT BIG WASTE

In the Fashionable Restaurant and Dairy Lunch Rooms in Berlin One Can Find as Great a Variety of Foods as in Any American City—White Bread Only Food Card to Find.

Germany is not starving. Food is plentiful. Shop windows are filled with meat, fruit, fish, cake, biscuits, bread and other varieties of food. Prices vary little from those in New York and London. The only food one has difficulty in finding is white bread, but everyone here is so accustomed to the "KK" or war potato bread that white bread is a forgotten luxury, says Carl W. Ackerman writing from Berlin.

In the fashionable restaurant and dairy lunches one can find as great a variety of foods as in any American city. At the first class hotels meals are as reasonable as they are in the leading American hotels.

Everybody, however, eats by bread card and no one wastes food. In the restaurants and hotels diners order only what they can eat. That is the way the civil population of Germany has adapted itself to the war.

My bread card was issued the first day of my arrival. It entitles me to 250 grams of bread for three meals. That amount is equal to ten good slices of a five-cent loaf of bread in America, and I have found that it is more than I care for any day. The daily bread cards are about four inches square. Around the borders are little square perforations which can be broken off and exchanged for twenty-five grams of bread each. In the center are instructions saying that the card is not transferable, that it is good for only a certain day and that it is my "daily statement of bread allowance."

Permanent residents of Berlin receive their bread cards every week from the municipal authorities. The weekly cards are about nine inches square. They must be carried to the bakeries every time one purchases bread or they must be taken to the restaurants if one "dines out."

Housewives Enthusiastic.

German housewives are enthusiastic over bread cards, and the American women who maintain "pensions" here say they wish Germany had always had such cards. They declare the cards prevent an enormous waste of bread and they prevent the maids from taking bread away without their mistress's consent.

While food is plentiful the German government is doing everything possible to conserve the supplies and the people firmly believe that the United States should continue to send food into this country.

Every American who comes to Berlin, according to Ambassador Gerard, wants to see the kaiser. A few weeks ago a New Jersey minister appeared at the embassy with letters of introduction to the ambassador.

"Well, what can I do for you?" asked Gerard.

"Well," replied the divine hesitatingly, "nothing at present. I just wanted to come in and see you."

"You're the first American in two years who hasn't asked to meet the kaiser," said Gerard.

Germany's "KK" bread looks like brown bread and tastes like white bread.

That's the way the German scientists have put the bread problem on a scientific basis. "KK" bread gets its name from "Kriegs-kartoffel brot," which, translated, means "war potato bread." It is bread made of a mixture of wheat and potato flour, and it is considered just as nutritious as whole wheat bread.

Early in the war the United States department of agriculture imported some potato flour from Germany to experiment with it. It is understood here that the American scientists have found the "KK" bread made of 30 per cent potato flour and 70 per cent wheat flour more healthful than ordinary white bread.

SIX KILLED BY MANIAC.

Bodies Found Under House of Man Who Died in Asylum.

Six skeletons, apparently revealing murders committed by Eugene Butler while insane, were uncovered under his home, southeast of Niagara, N. D.

The victim had been hit on the head, their skulls being crushed in. All but one of the victims were adults, the other being a boy fifteen to eighteen years of age.

The discovery reveals a new chapter in the life of Butler, who was a recluse, became insane in 1906 and was an inmate of the Asylum for the Insane at Jamestown until his death in 1913.

That his victims were farm laborers who, he believed, were plotting to get his money is the theory advanced by officials.

The bodies were buried under the house, side by side, and Butler had concealed an opening through the floor through which he had dropped his victims. The murders were probably committed over a period of several years, probably four or five years before he was committed as insane.

Twin Tires?—No

The Other Costs Us $1,635,000 More

This is to prove that you can't judge tires by looks. Here are two Goodyear tires, seemingly identical. But one is built like many of its rivals. Goodyear extras are omitted. The other has those hidden values. And those unseen extras, on this year's output, will cost us $1,635,000. This year's betterments alone add to our cost $500,000 yearly. Yet our 1915 price reduction saves our users about five million dollars.

You Deserve It
You deserve the Goodyear quality when you buy a tire. You deserve Fortified Tires, with the No-Rim-Cut feature, the "On-Air" cure, our extra-strong fabric, our number of plies. You deserve in anti-skids our All-Weather tread, tough, double-thick and resistless. These things have brought Goodyear the largest sale in the world. They are saving our users millions of dollars yearly. They are at your command. Any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires. (249)

No Price Excuse
This is not a price excuse. Goodyear prices have been fairly racing down. Our late big reduction made the third in two years, totaling 45 per cent. No equal tire can compete.

SHIFT ARMY FOR RUSH ON CALAIS

Germans Plan to Break Through Regardless of Cost.

CLAIM GAIN AT YPRES

Ejected British From Trench They Invaded, Says Berlin—Arras Cathedral Burning.

London, July 8.—"Break through to Calais—now!" is the Kaiser's latest order to his troops in the western zone, according to reports received here from Zurich, Paris, Amsterdam and other places.

Advices from Zurich go so far as to state that ten German army corps (400,000 men) are moving westward after a season of rest from their work in Galicia.

A Rotterdam dispatch says: "Reinforcements are expected by the Germans during the next few days in preparation for a new attempt to break through to Calais."

"In the main they represent new armies of young men, many of whom are volunteers who were advertised to be ready for the front by July. Travelers who have returned from Germany this last week state that the places where they were swarmed with men of the new formations ready to take the field."

The military men in discussing the reports of a savage attack on the allies, with Calais as the objective, see evidences of a German plan to repeat the tactics employed against the Russians, regardless of the cost in human life.

British Lose Ypres Again.

Berlin, July 8.—An official German account of the fighting on the western front says that the British, after carrying a trench in the Ypres region, were ejected. It reads:

"North of Ypres (Belgium) British troops invaded one German trench, but were ejected in the evening."

"West of Souchez two enemy night attacks were repulsed."

"While we were shelling enemy troops gathered at Arras the town took fire and the cathedral is burning."

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle rivers there was lively fighting. There also was some activity to the southwest of Les Eparges, where the enemy continued his efforts to win back the positions recently lost. At the first attack the French got into a part of the German line of defense. A counter attack won back all of the trenches with the exception of one piece of 100 yards. The enemy abandoned one machine gun. Two more charges made by the enemy, as well as an attack on Tranche, failed completely."

"Half way between Ally and Apremont the Germans attacked and stormed the enemy positions along a front of 1500 yards and captured 300 French. Near Croix-des-Carnes, in the forest of Le Pretre, the enemy made an exceptional violent counter attack which was repulsed."

"On Sudel, in the Vosges, an enemy trench was stormed and rendered useless for defense purposes."

"In the Champagne, southwest of Suippes, a German aviator shelled successfully an enemy training camp."

FREES WAR PRISONERS

Austria Unable to Find Food For Captured Russians.

Rome, July 8.—Six thousand war prisoners held at Trent, among whom are included some Russians captured in Galicia, have been released and are now on their way to Italy, via Switzerland.

Other prisoners, it is understood are to follow. There have been frequent reports that the Austrians could not find sufficient food for their prisoners and consequently have been compelled to release them.

Germans Destroy Arras Cathedral.

Berlin, July 8.—The Arras cathedral was set on fire and practically destroyed during the German bombardment of the city on Tuesday night. The war department reported. The Germans found it necessary to shell the city. It was explained, because large bodies of French troops concentrated there during the fighting.

Sees Russia Yet Unbroken.

Lausanne, July 8.—That peace between the Teutonic allies and Russia is by no means in sight, owing to the "inexhaustible resources of Russia," was the opinion expressed by Maximilian Harden, the noted German editor, in the latest issue of his paper at Munich.

Botha Captures Otavi.

Pretoria, July 8.—After a long running fight, General Botha's British forces have taken Otavi, in the extreme northern part of German Southwest Africa.

Fourth Claims Another Victim.

Allentown, Pa., July 8.—Verna Moll, twelve years old, died from burns received while celebrating the Fourth on Monday. She was lighting punk, when her dress caught fire.

Great City's Sewage.

Every 24 hours there is poured into the Harlem river 99,000,000 gallons of New York city's sewage; into the North river 132,000,000 gallons and into the East river 264,000,000 gallons.

DUPONTS OBTAIN $60,000,000 ORDER

Russian Government Signs a Big Contract.

Wilmington, Del., July 8.—It became known that the Dupont Powder Company has received a $60,000,000 contract for powder from the Russian government.

This is a hurry order and if the contract is filled within a certain time there is to be a bonus of 33.33 per cent, which will mean an additional profit for the company amounting to $20,000,000 in addition to the regular profit on the contract for 60,000,000 pounds of powder at $1 per pound.

Officials of the powder company will not discuss the subject, but a member of the Russian military board is known to have been in Wilmington several times recently and the contract was then discussed.

The contract will be distributed among the company's several plants. The capacity of the Carney's Point plant is half a million pounds a day, but that plant already is working at capacity. A new plant is being built, but it is doubtful if it can be completed in time to make powder under this new Russian contract. Extra men have been put to work on the construction work and everything is being rushed at top speed.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—A curious crowd of neighbors invade the mysterious home of Judge Ostrander, county judge and eccentric recluse, following a veiled woman who has gained entrance through the gates of the high double barriers surrounding the place. The woman has disappeared but the judge is found in a cataleptic state. Bela, his servant, appears in a dying condition and prevents entrance to a secret door. Bela dies. The judge awakes.

CHAPTER II—Miss Weeks explains to the judge what has occurred during his seizure. He secretly discovers the whereabouts of the veiled woman.

CHAPTER III—The veiled woman proves to be the widow of a man murdered before the judge and electrocuted for murder years before. Her daughter is engaged to the judge's son, from whom he is estranged, but the murder is between the lovers. The widow plans to clear her husband's memory and asks the judge's aid.

CHAPTER IV—Alone in her room Deborah Scoville reads the newspaper clippings telling the story of the murder of Algonquin Etheridge by John Scoville in Dark Hollow, twelve years before.

CHAPTER V—The judge and Mrs. Scoville meet at Spencer's Folly and she shows him how, on the day of the murder, she saw the shadow of a man, whittling a stick and wearing a long peaked cap, like her husband's. Until long afterward she did not know that her husband had not worn that cap on the fatal day. The judge engages her and her daughter Reuther to live with him in his mysterious home.

CHAPTER VI—Deborah and her lawyer, Black, go to the police station and see the stick used to murder Etheridge. She discovers a broken knife-blade point embedded in it. Deborah and Reuther go to live with the judge.

CHAPTER VII—While cleaning the judge's study under his eye, Deborah sees a portrait of Oliver, the judge's son, with a black band painted across the eyes. That night she finds her husband's room, a cap with a peak like the shadowed one, and a knife with a broken blade-point.

CHAPTER VIII—Anonymous letters and a talk with Miss Weeks increase Deborah's suspicions and fears. She finds that Oliver was in the ravine on the murder night.

CHAPTER IX—Black warns Deborah that her inquiries may have serious results and she is advised to stop her inquiries.

CHAPTER X—Black warns Deborah that her inquiries may have serious results and she is advised to stop her inquiries.

CHAPTER XI—In the court room the judge, partial in his charge on a murder trial, is handed an anonymous note and has another cataleptic seizure. The note is picked up and read aloud.

CHAPTER XII—A mob follows the judge to his home. Deborah tells him why suspicion has been aroused against Oliver.

CHAPTER XIII—The Telegram.

This was the document and these the words which Deborah, widow of the man thus doubly denounced, had been given to read by the father of the writer, in the darkened room which had been and still was to her, an abode of brooding thought and unfathomable mystery.

No wonder that during its reading more than one exclamation of terror and dismay escaped her. There were so many reasons for believing this record to be an absolute relation of the truth.

Incoherent phrases which had fallen from those long-closed lips took on new meaning with this unveiling of an unknown past. Repugnances for which she could not account in those old days, she now saw explained. He would never, even in passing, give a look at the ruin on the bluff, so attractive to every eye but his own. As for entering its gates—she had never dared so much as to ask him to do so.

Then the watch! Deborah knew well that watch. She had often asked him by what stroke of luck he had got so fine a timepiece. God! was her mind veering back to her old idea as to his responsibility for the crime committed in Dark Hollow? Yes; she could not help it. Denial from a monster like this—a man who with such memories and such spoil, could return home to wife and child, with some gay and confused story of a great stroke in speculation which had brought him in the price of the tavern it had long been his ambition to own—what was denial from such lips worth? The judge was right. Oliver—whose ingenious story had restored his image to her mind, with some of its old graces—had been the victim of circumstances and not John Scoville.

Her thoughts had reached this stage and her hand, in obedience to the new mood, was lightly ruffling up the pages before her, when she felt a light touch on her shoulder and turned with a start.

The judge was at her back. How long he had stood there she did not know, nor did he say, but when upon one to be of no very agreeable character."

"Judge, I'm your friend," thus Mr. Black began. "Thinking you must wish to know who started the riotous procedure which disgraced our town today, I have brought the ring-leader here to answer for himself—that is, if you wish to question him."

Judge Ostrander wheeled about, gave the man a searching look, and failing to recognize him as any one he had ever seen before, beckoned him in.

"I suppose," said he, when the lounging and insolent figure was fairly before their eyes, "that this is not the first time you have been asked to explain your enmity to my long-absent son."

"Now; I've had my talk wherever and whenever I took the notion. Oliver Ostrander hit me once. I was just a little chap then and meanin' no harm to any one. I kept a posterin' of 'im and he hit me. He'd a better have hit a feller who hadn't my memory. I've never forgotten that hit, and I never will. That's why I'm hittin' him now. It's just my turn: 'he's all'."

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

Can Newspapers Nationalize?

There is a certain corset that is known and sold all over North America.

It is a standard product alike in style and price everywhere. It is said to be more largely sold than any other similar article.

Its sales were built up almost entirely by newspaper advertising which sent women directly to the dealers stores.

"Quality plus newspaper advertising is the secret of our success" say the manufacturers of this article.

You, Mr. Local Merchant, can purchase plenty of articles of known quality to sell over your counter and you can purchase the newspaper advertising of known circulation to inform your customers and buyers generally within your territory of what you have for sale.

Without informing them about your wares you have only to expect that they will buy from someone who does tell them what he has to sell.

The Castle Clock

By JOHN Y. LARNED

When Count Kerchoff died leaving no children his fortune passed to a distant connection who had never seen him or his abode. The young man who succeeded to the title and the property, Adolf Herzog, on receipt of notification of his relative's death and his own ascension to the estate, went to the schloss and took up his abode there. He found Hans Schlotter, an old servant, in charge of the place, who showed him his domicile and gave him a minute account of everything in it, for Schlotter had been there ever since he was born and for many years had been the major domo.

"That clock," he said, referring to a timepiece some six feet in height and in breadth and thickness the size of a coffin for an adult, "has stood there ever since the schloss was built, now nearly 200 years ago. It has foretold the death of every count since the first, who was ennobled on account of his services in battle."

"What?" exclaimed the young man, with a shudder. "Foretold death? How did it do that?"

"I cannot tell you," replied the old man. "All I know is that two counts have died while I have lived here. One of them told my father that he was going to die, the clock having warned him of his approaching end. The other, he who died a few weeks ago, told me the same thing with regard to himself. But there is nothing remarkable about this, for there is a tradition that the clock will foretell the death of the incumbent count till the schloss is a ruin."

Count Adolf said nothing in reply to this information, but it affected him very sensibly. Soon after becoming domiciled in his new home he found himself constantly looking for some sign from the clock that could be interpreted as an indication that his end was near. It would seem rather that the clock should be looking for signs of its own decay, because it was very old while the count was young and healthy.

Count Adolf was betrothed when he acceded to the property to Bertha von Holwig, whom he married soon after his accession and took her there to live. Not wishing that she should be aware of his uncomfortable feelings occasioned by the tradition he said nothing to her about it. But it was not long before the young countess saw that something unpleasant was affecting her husband, and in time she surmised that it was the clock. For she noticed that her husband was often wakeful, and whenever that occurred he told her he wished it would not tick so loud.

One night when Count Adolf was not feeling well, after he had gone to sleep his wife arose, slipped downstairs and stopped the pendulum. Then she went back to bed. The reason she did this was that she feared if her husband awoke and heard the ticking he would be annoyed by it. In the middle of the night the count awoke, feverish and in pain.

Immediately he noticed that the clock was silent. Had he been in a normal condition he would doubtless have thought it had run down, though it had never been known to run down, for Hans Schlotter attended to its winding and had done so for half a century. He boasted that in all these years he had never permitted it to run down but once, though he admitted that this had occurred shortly before Count Kerchoff's death.

Unfortunately the old man had told this to his young master. Therefore when Count Adolf awoke feeling ill and did not hear the ticking of the clock he at once inferred that its ceasing presaged his death. Having always concealed what troubled him from his wife, fearing that she would conceive a contempt for him on account of it, he did not now reveal it to her. But he awoke her and told her that he feared he was going to die.

The countess at once awoke the servants and sent for a doctor, who found the count in a state of collapse. He could not tell what was the matter with his patient, for all his organs seemed to be in fairly good working order. The count's nerves were evidently affected, so, not knowing what else to do, the doctor gave him a sedative, which put him to sleep.

A daughter of Hans Schlotter, going downstairs after having carried up a kettle of hot water for the invalid, noticed that the old clock had stopped. Supposing that her father had let it run down, she started the pendulum going; but, noticing that the weights still hung high, she refrained from winding it. When the count awoke Hans was standing by his bed. The invalid, hearing the clock ticking, asked Hans if he was aware that the clock had stopped during the night. Hans said he was not.

"It stopped to give me warning," replied the count, "and it has gone on again." Thereupon the poor man went off again into a nervous chill.

The countess coming in at this moment, Hans told her that her husband was about to die, for the clock in the hall always stopped when the count incumbent was approaching his end.

"Fool!" cried the countess. "I stepped it myself."

The count heard her and, sitting up in bed, said, "I am the fool."

The next morning the count was quite well again. It was the clock that was dead. The countess had chopped it into fank and kindling wood.
